About Thomas Ueber

Thomas was born in Germany where he lives and works. Music has been with him all his life. He recorded radio broadcasts in childhood and later there were various DJ appearances, mainly at private events of friends or colleagues. Later then, all this turned into a serious interest for computer music production. First contact in Propellerhead Reason demo and in Ableton Live 8 Suite but today the center of every of each of his productions is Steinberg Cubase Pro and sometimes Bitwig. Digital as well as analogue components provide the drive in the home studio. With a little focus more in the digital area he makes use of modular softsynths or a Reaktor ensemble as well as an emulation of a Roland synth, drum samples and orchestral Kontakt instruments. All shouldn't be missing there.

His genre is electronic music. The style ranges from acid to idm, electro and techno or deep house with a touch of Balearic vibes. However, the musical influences come from all directions from blues, rock, country or sometimes jazzy and pop.
